

Greetings: My name is Ron Hequet; Consultant and Speaker;

Contributing Author – American Management Association, 'Leading & Learning Ezine', 'Affluent Magazine', 'The Advisor' and Presenter for ExecSense Webinars.

The abridged article below was written for a United Business Media newswire service and has been posted here in order to offer additional value and actionable thought to your organization from ActumConsulting.com.

Making the Transition from Employee to Entrepreneur ©

 $\mathbf{B}\mathbf{y}$

Ron Hequet

I founded my first company at age 26. I had some modest success, enough to start-up another company two years later. To date I have started or owned 8 businesses in 6 different industries, i.e. distribution, sales, retail, and manufacturing.

Now is the time to start your own business, IF, the entrepreneur meets certain criteria.

- 1. Your own ideas can be great, but there must be a market not served or your mouse trap must be better to take the business away from the competition. If your idea's foundation is based on price, forget it. The outlook should be positive, as business in general has no where to go but up, and now is the time to start.
- 2. You must have a 'written' 1-3 year business plan pro-forma. No, not one of those fill in the blank software in a box kits, and not the go down to the library

- and follow an outline formats. Have it analyzed by a paid expert, providing you with written data assessment.
- 3. Entrepreneur; by definition, must be willing to lose everything. There is no such thing as starting a proper business and not being exposed to the possibility of not succeeding. I and my wife were willing to lose it all. If there is any hesitancy by either party, don't do it.

For more information and real world examples, contact...

Ron Hequet 800.350.5700 Ron@ActumConsulting.com

Web: www.ActumConsulting.com/blog

Web: www.ActumConsulting.com/blog